Common Mistakes and How to Avoid Them

Even seasoned Spanish learners can fall into pitfalls when tackling lesson 6. Here are some frequent errors and strategies to circumvent them:

- Verb Conjugation Confusion: Remember the verb endings for regular -ar, -er, and -ir verbs in the present tense. Practice with flashcards and spaced repetition.
- Adjective-Noun Agreement: Always check the gender and number of the noun before selecting an adjective form. A quick rule: if the noun ends in o, it's usually masculine; if it ends in a, it's usually feminine.

- Subject-Verb Agreement: Verify that the subject pronoun matches the verb ending. For instance, "ellos" requires the third-person plural form.
- Spelling Errors: Spanish spelling can be tricky, especially with accents. Use a dictionary or an online spell-checker to confirm unfamiliar words.
- Pronunciation Mistakes: Practice speaking aloud and recording yourself. Listening to native speakers will help you internalize correct pronunciation.
